Oprah Winfrey biography. Oprah Winfrey is an American media mogul, actress, philanthropist, author, producer, and social commentator. Winfrey is also credited with giving an era of self-empowerment to millions of African-Americans, which has led to a huge cultural impact. According to Forbes magazine, she is the most influential and wealthiest African-American of the 20th century, having earned more than $1 billion from her media empire in a career that spans four decades. She has been called the most powerful woman in the world, and TIME magazine has listed her as one of the most influential people of all time. In 2006, she was ranked by Forbes as the world's fourth richest person, with an estimated net worth of $1.3 billion. Winfrey was born into a Chicago family headed by a mother who was born into slavery and a father who was born into wealth. Her father was a prominent dentist who was the first African American to graduate from Harvard University and her mother was a high school principal. Winfrey was raised with a preacher in the house and she learned to talk, read, and write at an early age, although she eventually became an avid reader of romance novels. Her parents divorced when she was 13, and she was raised by her mother, a single parent. She attended Interlochen Center for the Arts, where she was discovered by The Three Dads, who were recording artists that belonged to the doo-wop group The Moonglows. Winfrey became the lead singer for the group and started acting in television shows while singing in the band. When she was 15, Winfrey had a role in a television movie. That was followed by her first film role as a maid in Malcolm X (1992), the biographical film based on the life of the former Nation of Islam leader Malcolm X. Winfrey starred as Mary Ann in the movie adaptation of The Color Purple (1985). In her early career, Winfrey was considered one of the biggest stars of television because she was a bestselling author, producer and network executive. She was named Entertainer of the Year by the NAACP in 1986. Her 1987 movie Hire My Husband won an Academy Award for Best Original Song, and she was awarded a Golden Globe Award for Best Actress for her role in the film. In 1988, she starred in the hit comedy The Woman Who Played With Fire, which was followed by the critically acclaimed drama film Mississippi Masala (1991), which won the Academy Award for Best Foreign Language Film.
